AND ABOUT HENDERSONVILLE

MARSHALL-SKIPPER.

Hendersonville Young Business Man

Claims Florida Lady for His Bride

The following account of the marriage of Albert Ensey Marshall of Hendersonville, and Miss Freddie Virginia Skipper of New Smyrna, Fla., is taken from the New Smyrna News of Friday, June 23. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall are now in Hendersonville, occupying their home on Toms Hill:

"The marriage of Miss Freddie Virginia Skipper of this city to Albert Ensey Marshall of Hendersonville, N. C., was solemnized last evening at 8 o'clock in the First Methodist church, South, by Rev. H. A. Spencer, pastor of the church.

"The church was decorated with quantities of ferns, trailing ivy and mountain daisies from the home of the bridegroom.

The altar rail was twined with ivy and over it an arch also twined in green had been erected, from which was suspended a floral horseshoe.

"Over the right aisle an arch of bamboo supported the letter 'S' and the left aisle, similarly arranged, supported the letter 'M.' Ropes of vines enclosed the section of seats occupied by the relatives and closest friends and a lattice work of green partially concealed the bridal chorus in the choir loft. Pure white mountain daisies were intermingled with the greens throughout the decorations.

"Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. W. C. Chowning assisted by Mrs. Kinner Hollister at the piano, rendered a pleasing program of music. Immediately following the vocal solo, 'I Love You Truly,' a chorus consisting of Messdames E. L. Greer, W. C. Chowning, Maurice Ashton, C. G. Herrick, O. T. Uselman, J. R. Matthews and A. B. Fielder, and Misses Irma Greer and Annie Bouchelle began the strains of the Lohengrin bridal chorus, and the wedding party proceeded forward.

"The bridesmaids, Misses Cornelia Smith, Irene Brown, Bertie Gore, and Ruth Jones, were accompanied by Crawford Pattillo, Bert Fuller, Leo Baker and Taylor Langford.

"They entered from the two side aisles and met in front of the arch. The bridesmaid, Miss Ira Skipper, sister of the bride entered alone. The little flower girls, Evelyn Lyle and Dora Bell preceded the bride strewing rose petals in her path, and the little ring bearer Russell Galbreath came in from the other side bearing the ring upon a satin pillow.

"The bride was attended by her uncle, F. S. Gore, of Arcadia, who gave her away in marriage. They were met as they joined the waiting party by the bridegroom and his best man, Maurice W. Ashton.

"The impressive ring ceremony was read by Rev. Spencer and the party left the church to the closing strains of the bridal chorus.

"The bride was charming in a gown of georgette crepe over white satin trimmed in lace and pearls. She wore a veil caught up with orange blossoms and carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses, with shower of valley lilies. The bridesmaids carried out a color scheme of pink and blue in their attire.

"Miss Cornelia Smith wore a gown of blue satin taffeta. Misses Irene Brown and Bertie Gore wore pink crepe de chine and Miss Ruth Jones wore blue crepe de chine. The bridesmaids carried arm bouquets of pink and white carnations.

"The maid of honor wore a gown of white organdie and carried white carnations.

"The little flower girls were fairly like in pink jap accordeon plated silk dresses with maline sashes and bows.

"The little ring bearer was dressed in an entire white suit.

"The gentlemen of the party were attired in full dress suits.

"After the ceremony the wedding party retired to the home of the bride's mother where an informal reception was held. Later they left in a car for Daytona Beach where they will spend a few days, and then go to their future home in Hendersonville, N. C.

"The bride is the elder daughter of Mrs. Virginia Gore Skipper of this city. She was born here where she has spent most of her life. She has many charming characteristics which will win her a host of friends wherever she goes.

"The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Marshall of Hendersonville, N. C., and is engaged in business in that city.

"The young couple have the best wishes of a host of friends for their future happiness and success in the home which they are establishing."

DESERVES WELL OF FARMER

Phoebe's Voice Is Faint and She Certainly Is Not Pretty, but She Hates All Beetles.

After you're well acquainted with the phoebe and catch some of her spirit of friendliness and companionship, you won't care a snap of the finger that she can't sing very well, nor that she isn't good looking. You'll welcome her in spring just as if she were a Venus for looks and Melba for voice. You'll listen for her first notes and say: "There's Phoebe back again."

She's the earliest arrival among the flycatchers, reaching here about March 21, even before the flies. She seeks out her last year's home under the bridge, or beneath the rafters of the barn, and starts renovating her nest. Often when an unscrupulous cowbird usurps the nest to lay eggs of her own, the phoebe will build another nest atop the old one and start house-keeping over again as if nothing had interrupted.

We've remarked that she couldn't sing, yet her little "ph-bee" note is one of the cheeriest of springtime. We've said she wasn't beautiful, yet her dull olive-brown coat, with a yellowish-white breast are far more attractive than some birds of gay plumage. The phoebe is beautiful because she is useful.

From the time of her arrival until she leaves late in the fall she's busy warring on the farmer's enemies. She'll sit on a mullein stalk and watch for a beetle. Suddenly she will dart into the air and her bills go shut with a snap—good-by beetle. She is a forest conservationist, because she eats the elm leaf beetle. She is the farmer's friend, because she eats the May beetles and click beetles, which injure crops. She is the gardener's friend because she eats the squash beetle.

In fact, she is the friend of everyone except the beetles.—Philadelphia North American.

Long Time in Transit.

On October 3, 1883, a clerk in the employ of a New York steamship broker mailed a letter to the master of the Swedish bark Superior at Marseilles.

The letter was never delivered. But in the autumn of 1913 it was returned to the steamship broker's office, stamped all over its face. The best explanation offered for its 30 years in transit was that it had lain in the Swedish consulate at Marseilles all those years, and that during a housecleaning was found and remailed.

In the post office department officials tell of a letter that was mailed from there in 1852, addressed to Robert S. McKay at New Orleans. The letter followed Mr. McKay to Russia, where he was a consulate attaché. But he had died there and had left in his will a provision that all his papers should be locked up until his five-year-old son and namesake attained his majority.

When 1868 arrived the son was traveling and exploring in Africa. A law clerk, not knowing the provisions of the 1852 will, supposed the letter was for the present Mr. McKay and started it forth again. It rested in Cape Town through error until the year 1871.

When it was started back to New Orleans Mr. McKay had left for exploration in Chile. Letter and addressee finally got together in Louisiana in 1874. And strange to say, matters of business importance to the father were still of business interest to the son.

Totem Pole Must Don Some Clothes.

Clothes make the totem pole, according to John Oscar Davis, collector of the port, at San Francisco.

Horried at what he saw when a Burmese specimen consigned to the Rev. J. H. East of Portland was uncovered at the customhouse early in February, Collector Davis has now recovered sufficiently from the shock to announce that when the proper habiliments have been placed on the relic it may be allowed to proceed on its way to the indignant consignee.

Painting, the collector said, had been considered, but clothing would be better. His plan now is to arrange for a proper costuming of the mooted totem pole at the expense of Doctor East and that then the curio, decorously accoutered for appearance among the most select circles, might be allowed admission to the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Quaint Economies.

The most curious example of war economy, as practiced in London, is that two of the greatest London stores have now dropped apostrophes in their announcements and catalogues.

A large tea-shop firm issue advice for economists by way of a notice on their tea tables. One suggestion is that if people who formerly took two lumps of sugar would now take only one there would be a considerable saving to the nation and assistance in carrying on the war. Some of the customers have acted on the advice, but, fearful that they might embarrass the firm by making their economy a matter of profit to them, make a habit of unblushingly pocketing the second lump to be used at home. Empty tin cans have now a value, and one firm has exchanged a pound of their coffee for one and a half dozen coffee tins.

Discerning Youth.

"Do you believe rabbits lay Easter eggs?" asked one small boy.

"No," replied the other. "I don't know whether that story is to be considered a myth or a nature fake."

All Ready For Chimney Rock Opening July 4th

Nearly all arrangements have been completed for the formal opening of the Chimney Rock Scenic Highway July 4. A large flag will be raised at the top of the rock at noon and a fireworks display from the top of the rock will take place at night. There will be a band concert throughout the day.

The road is three miles long extending from the Charlotte-Asheville Highway in Hickory Nut Gap actually to the base of Chimney Rock. It is 18 feet wide, 4 to 7 per cent grade with 2 per cent grade on hairpin curves with diameters of 75 feet on all switch-backs, the whole sanded throughout. The entrance feature is the work of the landscape department of Biltmore estate. There is a formal entrance, the road passing between two massive piers built from the native granite. In reaching the opposite bank of Broad River it traverses a very beautiful island, a veritable primeval forest to and from which are two very substantial and beautiful rustic bridges. The first mile of the Highway rises by easy curves in the direction of the bottomless pools, thence turning sharply to the left, the second mile occupies the crest of the Elosium Ridge where some wonderful views are obtained. The third mile is a series of marvelous and interesting switch-back reverses rising one upon another out of solid rock till at last it reaches actually the base of the "Chimney." Among the interesting things to be seen are Chimney Rock, the Hickory Nut falls, and the Appian Way, a narrow bench on the face of the precipice leading from the base of Chimney Rock to the top of the falls. In the vicinity the Hickory Nut Gap itself is one of great beauty. Other points of interest are Bat Cave, Rumbling Cave, the Bottomless Pools, Silver Falls, Malden Hair Falls, not to mention Broad River itself with hundreds of cascades un-named.

First Regiment Went to Camp Saturday

Saturday saw the first movement of the North Carolina national guard to the concentration camp at Morehead City. The first regiment, comprising twelve companies from the western part of the state, were first to move. They left their respective home stations on special trains Saturday and were safely in camp Sunday morning. The ambulance companies and hospital corps went into camp Monday morning. The second and third regiments were expected to follow at intervals of three or four days.

The first regiment went into camp with 33 officers and 1,145 men. The banner company was Company L of Concord with a full war strength enlistment of 142 men.

In every town and city where the companies were stationed their departure was a signal for great patriotic demonstrations. Special church services were held, picnic dinners given and pocket testaments presented to the soldiers at a number of the places.

All employers of members of the national guard will hold their positions open for them subject to their demand when they return and in a number of cases corporations and individuals have issued statements to the effect that the men's pay will continue same as if they were still working at their old positions.

The boys departed cheerfully considering what was before them. They knew they were going to camp at Morehead City, but they knew not where they would be sent next. Almost with one accord they were perfectly willing to go anywhere their superiors called them and if the North Carolina boys should see active service in Mexico we feel sure they will give a good account of themselves.

PROGRESSIVES ENDORSE CHARLES E. HUGHES.

After reading Theodore Roosevelt's letter finally declining the progressive nomination for president, the executive committee of the progressive party in session at Chicago, by a vote of 32 to six with nine members declining to vote, endorsed Charles E. Hughes for president and the Bull Moose party practically went out of existence as a national political organization. The decision to endorse the republican nominee came at the end of a stormy session.

NERVOUS PEOPLE

sometimes suffer for years without learning the true source of their affliction—defective eyesight.

It is true that not all nervous disorders are caused by eyestrain but it is a well established scientific fact that a great many cases are caused by the constant drain of nervous energy resulting from forcing the eyes beyond their strength. Such nervous troubles can be cured only by correctly prescribed and fitted glasses.

VARNER AGAIN PRESIDENT.

The re-election of Col. H. B. Varner as president of the North Carolina Good Roads Association guarantees another year of progress by that splendid organization. Colonel Varner is the premier good roads man of North Carolina, and, for that matter, of the South. His intelligent and enthusiastic leadership has already resulted in the building of many of the fine highways as can be found in the entire country and is destined to revolutionize living conditions among hundreds of thousands of country people in our state.

One can get an intelligent idea of what the present good roads movement means to the State when it is known that more modern highways have been built in North Carolina during the last three years than were built in all the preceding years of the state's history. And these roads have been and are still being built not only with the end in view of serving the people of counties which are voting bonds and levying taxes for road construction, but for the purpose of serving the whole State. Thus one county after another builds a road and when all have finished behold we have a splendid Central Highway leading from one end of the State to the other. As a valuable servant of the people of North Carolina Colonel Varner is a much better fit at the head of the Good Roads Association than he would be if he were occupying a seat in the Congress of the United States. But this is not saying that he would not make a good Representative in Congress.—Winston-Salem Journal.
